NGSA Congratulates Wellinghoff on his Appointment

(Washington, DC) The Natural Gas Supply Association (NGSA) today congratulated Jon Wellinghoff on his selection by President Obama as Chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). NGSA also applauds the nomination of Suedeen Kelly for a second term as a Commissioner of the FERC. The Association looks forward to more opportunities to work with Chairman Wellinghoff and Commissioner Kelly toward a secure and reliable energy future for our nation.

The President and CEO of NGSA, Skip Horvath, commented, "Chairman Wellinghoff has distinguished himself as an advocate and effective voice for the American consumer. We look forward to working with him and the Commission to help the nation meet its energy needs by tapping into all forms of energy, including clean natural gas, while protecting our environment. The Chairman has already shown his commitment to promote the efficient use of our energy resources by industry and the public. We believe, under the leadership of Chairman Wellinghoff, FERC will be successful in promoting energy efficiency, providing balanced market oversight and ensuring the timely development of both electric transmission and natural gas infrastructure."
