

Casey Hollers Senior Director, Regulatory Affairs and Policy

Casey Hollers is the Senior Director of Regulatory Affairs and Policy for the Natural Gas Supply Association (NGSA).

She works with NGSA's members to build public policy positions that advance NGSA's priority issues at the federal level. She writes filings on behalf of NGSA's membership, briefs members on significant legal and federal developments impacting the industry and represents NGSA in coalitions with industry and customer groups to advance common interests.

Casey represents members' interests before federal agencies with a concentration on efforts to support gas infrastructure, as well as infrastructure for new types of lower-emissions resources; ensuring just and reasonable pipeline rates; and transparent and effective FERC enforcement policies. She filed extensive comments at FERC advocating for balanced policies that seriously consider environmental impacts while still enabling the development of needed natural gas infrastructure;

Casey also spearheaded a coalition of natural gas and electric industry trade associations to develop a "FERC Enforcement White Paper" outlining specific improvements to FERC's enforcement and audit practices and policies. FERC took action to implement several of the important improvements suggested in the white paper, including rescinding its Notice of Alleged Violations policy; issuing a proposed rulemaking to strengthen its safe harbor policy; updating the audits section of the FERC website; and several actions to improve price indices reporting.

Most recently, Casey helped form a coalition of shipper trade associations to raise concerns about the practice of packaging high market value pipeline capacity with non-contiguous and operationally unrelated parcels of capacity with little or no market value in auctioning available capacity. She also oversees NGSA's annual in-depth analysis of the return on equity's (ROE) of major interstate pipelines, which has become the key support provided to Congress in efforts to reform Section 5 of the Natural Gas Act.

Prior to joining NGSA, Casey oversaw professional training programs at Kirkland & Ellis LLP where she also advised internal committees on new initiatives and organized seminar and networking events.

A graduate of the University of Maryland with a degree in Government and Politics, Casey serves on the Auxiliary Board for the Washington School for Girls.